

Alijah Gauthier ('11) spoke up at all-school meetings and "annuncios," representing 100% of TSA students who actively engage in our community every day.

Phoebe Landon ('10) designed an intricate vest in her textiles class, representing 58% of students who take a studio art class every year.

Otto Pierce ('09) spent spring semester 2008 in Ladakh, India with TSA sponsored Vermont Intercultural Semesters, representing 18% of our students who will study abroad or at another school in the United States during their high school years.

Cody Dyer ('10) went on a school led back-packing trip in the White Mountains in the fall and ice climbed with teacher, Kevin Wilcox's elective in the winter, representing 9% of TSA students who participated in an outdoor adventure through school in 2007-08.

Amanda Coviello ('11) was a munchkin in the 2007 production of Wizard of Oz, representing 98% of our high school students who participated in the school musical.

Michael Young-Ward ('10) designed a wind-powered vehicle that could travel across several courses as a part of UVM's College of Engineering TASC competition, representing 5% of TSA students who participate on the highly successful Sharon Academy TASC team every year.

Hudson Cox ('11) participated in JV soccer and varsity lacrosse in 2007-08, representing the 60% of our student body who participate in a team sport every year.

Cody Spiegel ('09) wrote a ten page paper on the impact of climate change on Vermont's maple sugar industry and gave a 25 minute presentation on the topic in front of his peers and teachers, representing 100% of juniors and seniors who completed a similar exhibition project beyond the regular curriculum.

Ella Hayslett ('11) planned a community service trip to New Orleans in spring of 2008 along with 17 of her classmates, representing 21% of students who traveled on behalf of TSA in 07-08 and the 100% of TSA students who complete at least 40 hours of community service every year.

Chantelle Perry ('08) designed an innovative "green", energy-efficient home, along with the rest of her senior, Energy and the Environment class in 2007-08.

Nina Mangini ('09) took German as an independent study, representing 17% of high school students who elected to take an independent study in 2007-2008.

Shannon Boule ('08) taught her own sex education elective along with teacher Christa Wurm, representing dozens of students who step up to leadership roles at TSA every year.

Ben Ryan ('10) represented Russia in Dartmouth's Model UN Conference in spring 2008, representing the eight students who elected to participate in this rigorous event.