

Students enrolled in Beyond Selfies and Snapchat photography elective this quarter are creating amazing and thoughtful work. Students were challenged to give themselves permission to take time each week to see their world differently. Assignments encouraged students to get outside, take quiet contemplative walks, and be mindful each time the camera was raised to their eye. Weekly photography assignments varied and included a scavenger hunt, a real self-portrait (not a selfie!), finding letters in their names in nature, and juxtapositions. So many juxtapositions. Here are some of the fabulous results from the first mini session. (Instructor: Laura DeCapua, TSA Director of Visual Arts)

Abby Gross (From Left to Right: The Letter 'B', The number 16, Self-Portrait)

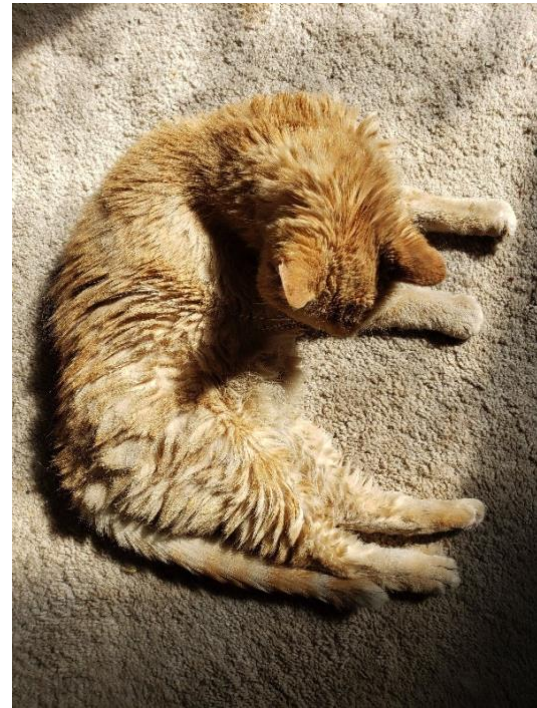

Avery Swett (Above and Below, Two very different, but visually similar items!)

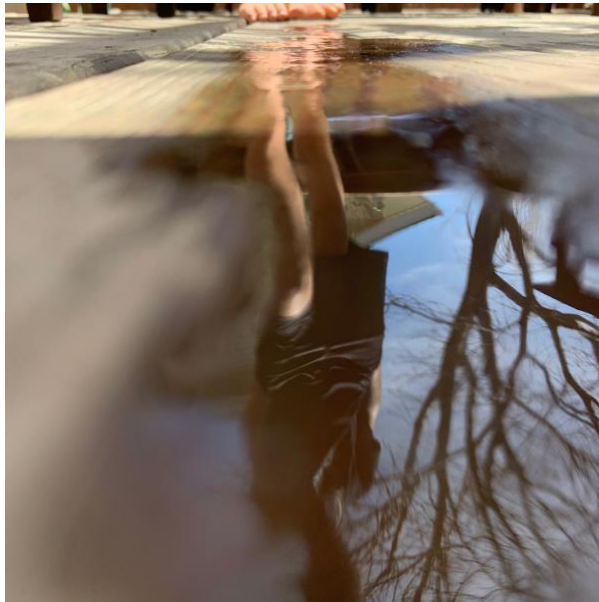

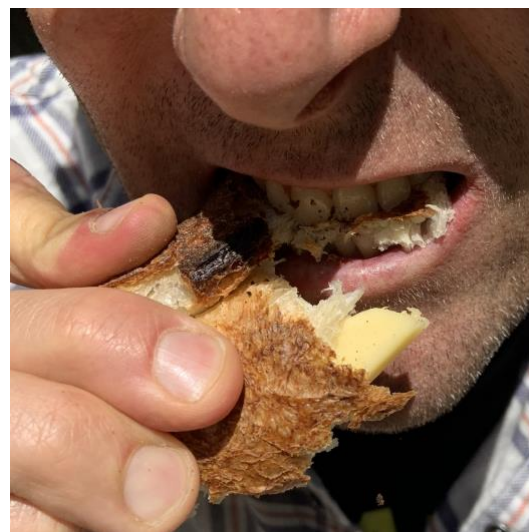

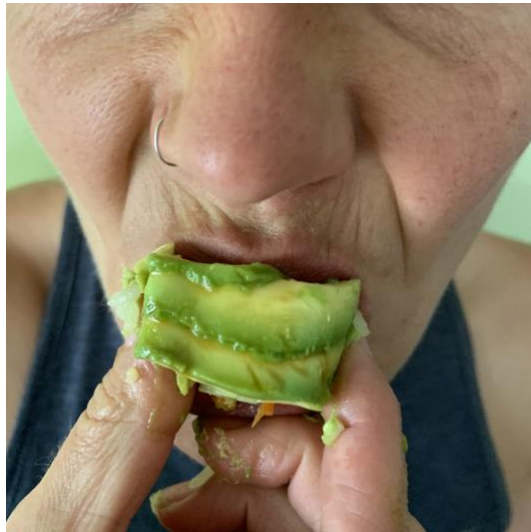

Cedric Rule-Becker (From Left to Right: Face in the bark, Self-Portrait and The letter "e")

Izzy Adler (From Left to Right: The number 16, The color red, Window light)

Poppy Tans (Above, Left: Perspective; Right: Introducing Order into Disorder; Below: Favorite Food)

Mayci LeDuc (Above Left, An animal in the clouds; Right, Self-Portrait)

Lily Welch (Photos from a series: A group of 'something')

Laila Reimanis (Above: Two very different, but visually similar items! Below: Left, The number 16; Right: Self-Portrait)

